Bassekou Kouyate is an incomparable master of the Malian ngoni, a lute-like instrument from western Africa, and he has performed with everyone from the late Ali Farka Toure to Taj Mahal. With a repertoire that illuminates the soul of Bambara culture, Kouyate's stellar ensemble makes its Southern California debut at the Getty.

Studio Announcements

Thanks for being patient with the move-in process. We're feeling settled now!
If you haven't used it yet, there is a guest parking spot at the end of the driveway. Unfortunately there is only one, but it's one more than we used to have! Our doorbell does work, so feel free to use it. Now that we're living in such LARGE quarters, I don't always here a knock on the front door.

Recitals

Adult Recital – Saturday, April 20th, 3pm at the home of student Wendy Wong. Let's talk about what piece(s) you're interested in performing. Start inviting family and friends!

Student Recital – The date is not nailed down, but will be sometime in late May. I'm aware that may conflict with graduation dates/ceremonies, etc, so please let me know what weekends are not available for you.
